ABOUT THIS WEEK

Following a trusted ally or being misled by a reckless person can be the difference between finding treasure or getting trapped. This week, we'll see how King Solomon's choice to ask God for wisdom set him up to lead well, especially as he would face many differing voices. Surrounding ourselves with those who point us to what's right reminds us that wise friends will help guide us.

WHAT?

There are a lot of adventure movies where friends have to "stick together" to survive a dangerous situation or complete an epic quest. That usually requires the characters to seek out helpful advice, like how to avoid getting eaten by monsters. Maybe we've never experienced anything like that, but we've all been in situations where we needed wisdom and guidance.

When you hear the word "wise," who do you think about? Sometimes, we are pleasantly surprised by the wisdom of the people we know. And while looking up to people who are older and wiser than us is always a good idea, where else might we find wisdom?

SO WHAT?

Proverbs 13:20 reminds us that when we spend time with people who are wise, we start becoming more wise over time, too. That sounds straightforward, but might raise more questions about how to find these wise people and how to become wise ourselves.

Solomon, who wrote these wise sayings in Proverbs, wasn't always wise. We learn in 1 Kings 3:3–14 that he simply asked God for wisdom as a young king. See, wisdom isn't something you need to wait until you're older to get. Your friends need wise friends right now, and so do you. Because wise friends will help guide you.

NOW WHAT?

How can you continue the search for wisdom?

- LOVE GOD. Getting closer to God will always get you closer to wisdom.
- LEARN FROM WISE EXAMPLES. Notice how wise people live their lives, make decisions, and follow God.
- HUMBLE YOURSELF. Remember we're all imperfect and unwise at times.
- ASK FOR HELP. Asking for help isn't a sign of weakness—it's a sign of wisdom.
- DO SOMETHING, TOGETHER. Put what you learn into practice and stick together with friends who are growing in wisdom. Because wise friends will help guide you.
