18–28; Hebrews 13:1

ABOUT THIS WEEK

The most legendary adventure stories reach a point when one character helps another discover their potential. This week, we'll see how Priscilla and Aquila shared what they knew about Jesus with Apollos to empower him to share the good news. Their story shows us how important it is to have friends who help us grow because every friend will influence you.

WHAT?

Think about your favorite adventure movies. These stories all have evil villains, dangerous terrain, daring adventures, and heart-stopping thrills. But do you know what else they have in common? Friends. Friends who look out for each other—especially when things get scary—but also influence each other in a lot of ways.

"Influence" shows up in every relationship—both the close and the casual ones. People influence us, and we influence them. And if we're not wise about who's influencing us, and how we're influencing others, our relationships might end up leading us somewhere we never intended to go.

SO WHAT?

Because we can all influence each other, Proverbs 12:26 says godly people choose their friends carefully. It tells us to be wise about the people we spend time with because friendships are powerful.

Acts 18:1–4, 18–28 gives us an example of how God took a small group of friends and used them to create a giant web of influence. Because of Paul, Aquila, Priscilla, and Apollos, many people heard and experienced the good news of Jesus.

Our friendships have the power to shape what we like, how we think, how we behave, and even what we believe. So choose wisely, because every friend will influence you.

NOW WHAT?

Since every friend will influence you, think about how you and your friends influence each other and what you can do next...

- ADD: Who can you add to your circle to help influence everyone for the better?
- SUBTRACT: We don't need to cut people off every time they mess up, but are there friends you need to spend a little less time with?
- MULTIPLY: How can you and your friends work together to "multiply" the good news of Jesus in the world? How can you "multiply" your influence to make a bigger difference, together?
